The deposit increment fee is equal to the multiple of the fee rate and the base. The base is equal to the difference between the total amount of the client's deposits as of 31 December of the relevant year, and the average daily balance of the client's deposits for the period from 1 September to 30 November of the relevant year. If the base is negative, the fee is zero. The total amount of the client's deposits consists of the client's funds deposited in current, savings, term, and deposit accounts, as well as deposit bills in all currencies. The fee is determined annually and can be charged from any client's account maintained by the Bank in the course of January of the following year. For the conversion of foreign currencies into CZK and vice versa, the CNB mid-market exchange rate valid as of 31 December of the given year is used.
